RECENT PROJECTS

Summary

I have improved my technical skills, including both frontend and backend knowledge, and aptitude skills such as detail-oriented, time-management, organization and planning, decision making and judgement, oral and written communication, teamwork, problem-solving, learning, and ability to take initiative from the coop experience.

Frontend vs Backend System

In modern web development, it applies both frontend and backend knowledge. In order to create my own web application this summer, I have implemented with frontend and backend system. It will use HTML and CSS to build the frontend - HTML for building structures and CSS for filling aesthetic components. After the frontend is completed, the backend is set up through PHP and connected to the database through MySQL, so that the data that users interact with the frontend can be stored in the database for later use, i.e. login. As a result, I created my own web application. If there is anything related to the frontend and backend, especially the trend of big data, it will be beneficial for the future.
